The Jacob Blaustein Institutes for Desert Research

The Department of Man in the Desert invites applications for a tenure-track position. We are seeking an outstanding researcher with an academic background in physical planning (architecture, landscape architecture, urban planning, etc.) and a strong focus on geospatial analysis. The candidate will be expected to initiate new research as well as to collaborate with the department’s multidisciplinary faculty, bringing spatial-analytic skills and perspectives to the study of environmental problems, with a focus on desert regions.

Applicants should hold a PhD degree in a relevant discipline, have undertaken post-doctoral research in an allied academic field, and demonstrate excellence in spatial analysis and GIS. Teaching obligations will be fulfilled within the Albert Katz International School for Desert Studies, where the language of instruction is English.

Applicants should submit a curriculum vitae, including a list of publications, at least two representative peer-reviewed published papers, a statement of research and teaching interests, and the names and addresses of five potential referees. All material is to be sent by May 15, 2013 to: Prof. David Pearlmutter, Department of Man in the Desert, The Jacob Blaustein Institutes for Desert Research, Ben-Gurion University, Sede Boqer Campus, Israel 84990; by e-mail: davidp@bgu.ac.il.
